

POSTGRADUATE STUDY IN PROFESSIONAL SUPERVISION

Core Papers 2023

If you are a health or human services professional, you will benefit greatly from these multidisciplinary programmes which will develop your clinical and professional supervision and leadership skills.

Our professional supervision programmes provide an opportunity to learn and reflect alongside course colleagues from a broad range of health and allied health professions, including social workers, counsellors and human services workers.

Throughout your study, you will examine the concept, role, purpose and benefits of professional supervision and explore a range of theoretical and practical models and approaches, including anti-oppressive and cross-cultural dynamics within supervision.

Core paper PROFSUPV 700: The Practice of Professional Supervision is a critical examination of the concept, role, purpose and benefits of supervision in a wide range of professions. The knowledge and skills required to offer supervision in professional contexts will be explored in depth.

While core paper PROFSUPV 701: Advanced approaches in Professional Supervision builds on prior critical knowledge with an examination of Western and Indigenous models of supervision for health, counselling and human service contexts. This will include the development of anti-oppressive supervision practice and an integration of advanced knowledge, skills and values of supervision.

EDUCATION AND SOCIAL WORK

Postgraduate study in Professional Supervision provides the opportunity to learn and reflect alongside course colleagues from a broad range of health and allied health professions. Further your career today and get in touch.

For more information, visit or contact the University of Auckland Student Hubs where friendly staff can provide you with advice. Email studentinfo@auckland.ac.nz