- Diagnosed at any time in pregnancy or within 6 weeks postpartum

- Reporting can be at the time of infection or retrospectively
- This registry will help to future proof maternity in New Zealand against epidemics by providing a sustainable platform ready to be activated for future infection outbreaks.

- Registry staff will follow-up with LMCs or DHB nominated contacts to complete standard maternity and health data collection.

Maternal consent:

- Specific consent is not required, but we ask that you advise women about the Registry and provide a Participant Information Sheet (www.liggins.auckland.ac.nz/covid19) which includes contact details for queries and opt-out request of they wish to do so.

Information storage and use:

- Stored securely by The University of Auckland.
- Data will be de-identified once data collection is completed for each woman.
- Data from the Registry may be combined with international work (e.g. Australia), particularly if the numbers of affected New Zealand women remain low.
- Access to the data in the Registry is limited to researchers who demonstrate their scientific need and ability to protect the rights of the women and babies in the Registry. Any research request requires agreement by the Registry management as well as the research ethics committee of their site.
- Reports from this Registry will be shared on our webpage, with the Ministry of Health, with profession colleges, with Te Rōpū Whakakaupapa Urutā (the National Māori Pandemic Group) and Tumu Whakarae (the National DHB Māori General Managers Group) for dissemination to DHB Māori Directorates.
